Legislative Update

October 3, 2018

This is election time and many of the legislators have been occupied with reelection campaigns or campaigns for different offices. The list of bills that are pending is long and senators and representatives will begin to sort out the ones of greatest interest to them and their constituencies. The time after the election (Lame Duck) will be busy.

Of interest to many folks, financial literacy has been getting attention. Two possible actionable proposals:

Possible proposed legislation: To amend section 3313.603 and to enact section 3319.238 of the Revised Code to require one-half unit of financial literacy in the high school curriculum and to establish qualifications for teaching financial literacy.

~~(Proposed deletion) Each school shall integrate the study of economics and financial literacy, as expressed in the social studies academic content standards adopted by the state board of education under division (A)(1) of section 3301.079 of the Revised Code and the academic content standards for financial literacy and entrepreneurship adopted under division (A)(2) of that section, into one or more existing social studies credits required under division (C)(7) of this section, or into the content of another class, so that every high school student receives instruction in those concepts. In developing the curriculum required by this paragraph, schools shall use available public-private partnerships and resources and materials that exist in business, industry, and through the centers for economics education at institutions of higher education in the state.~~

(proposed additions) The two units of instruction prescribed by division (C)(7) of this section may include one-half unit of instruction in the study of financial literacy as provided by division (C)(9) of this section, if a school district elects to do so.

The five units of instruction prescribed by division (C) (8) of this section may include one-half unit of instruction in the study of financial literacy as provided by division (C)(9) of this section, if a school district elects to do so. (9) Beginning with students who enter ninth grade for the first time on or after July 1, 2020 , one-half unit of instruction in the study of financial literacy. This requirement shall be satisfied by completing one-half unit of financial literacy instruction as part of the two required units of instruction in social studies under division (C)(7) of this section or as part of the five required units of instruction prescribed by division (C)(8) of this section, as determined by each school district. The study of financial literacy shall be as expressed in the academic content standards for financial literacy adopted under division (A)(2) of section 3301.079 of the Revised Code. In developing the curriculum required by division (C)(9) of this section, schools shall use available public-private partnerships and resources and materials that exist in business and industry.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Revised Code or in rules adopted by the state board, an individual who holds a valid educator license issued by the state board to teach social studies, business education, consumer and family sciences, or career-technical education may teach the study of financial literacy as required by division (C)(9) of this 130 131 132 133 134 135 136 137 138 139 140 141 142 143 144 145 146 147 148 149 150 151 152 153 154 155 156 157 158 . ## NOTE: JOINT COMMITTEE REPORT Monday, October 1, 2018

Joint Committee Backs Tuition Guarantee Programs, Reinstated Cost Caps

Instituting tuition guarantee programs and eliminating tuition freezes in favor of cost caps that enable "limited growth" are just a few of the recommended actions for Ohio's higher education institutions outlined in a new report by a joint legislative study group.

Those ideas and more are included in a report issued by the Joint Committee on Ohio College Affordability. The group – consisting of five senators and five representatives – filed its final report with Senate and House leaders and Gov. John Kasich on Friday, one day before their statutory Sept. 29 deadline.

"Our current rankings in affordability, attainment and access indicate that, as a state, we can do more to remove the barriers to success that so often inhibit students from achieving their goals," reads the cover letter signed by the group's 10 members.

"This realization is the foundation behind the Joint Committee's recommendations – that every high school graduate needs some level of post-secondary education or training in order to meet the economic demands of the modern, globalized workforce."

The group was formed by a budget provision (HB 49) and charged with studying and developing strategies to reduce the cost of attending higher education. The report distills feedback from the group's five public hearings into recommendations in five subject areas: increased student success and completion, predictability and transparency in pricing, providing accessible and affordable course materials, incentivizing pursuit of in-demand programs, and FAFSA completion and preparing for college attendance.

For example, the committee "strongly" recommends all colleges and universities – whether public or private – adopt a tuition guarantee program.

"Tuition guarantee models provide students and their families with a predictable guide to how much their education will cost," the committee wrote. "It is also recommended that universities include at least the first two years of room and board costs in their guarantee."

Members of the committee signing onto the report include chairman Sen. Steve Wilson (R-Maineville), Rep. Mike Duffey (R-Worthington), Sen. Matt Dolan (R-Chagrin Falls), Rep. Niraj Antani (R-Miamisburg), Sen. Jay Hottinger (R-Newark), Rep. Rick Perales (R-Beavercreek), Sen. Cecil Thomas (D-Cincinnati), Rep. Kristin Boggs (D-Columbus), Sen. Sandra Williams (D-Cleveland) and Rep. Brigid Kelly (D-Cincinnati).
