

The big issue this week has been the budget. Transportation has been a bone of contention between House, Senate, and Governor. Gun issues remain vital. Abortion and several related bills are probably the hottest issue. School funding has now become a major topic of discussion. Note: the speech bills are still open topics. Health standards has been proposed in the Senate and will probably be proposed in the House as well. A busy time in the Legislature!

1. Ohio Lawmakers Release School Funding Plan Cost Estimates

The state would put an additional $400 million toward school funding in Fiscal Year 2020 under a new funding plan proposed by two House members. Rep. Robert Cupp (R-Lima) and Rep. John Patterson on Friday released a simulation of their proposal, which features district-level and statewide costs for implementing the new plan. The simulation shows state foundation funding for schools growing from $6.85 billion for FY 2019 to $7.24 billion in FY 2020. Spending on foundation funding would increase to $7.57 billion under the plan in FY 2021. Rep. Cupp said in a statement a new formula is needed because the majority of school districts currently receive either more or less money than the existing formula prescribes. "Fair School Funding works for Ohio's students, educators, taxpayers and economic future. It's based on what it actually costs to educate students, what taxpayers can afford, and what local school districts determine will work in their communities," he said. "The current formula doesn't apply to 82% of Ohio school districts.

4. ISTE standards: Jessica Mercerhill, PhD: Thanks to insight from one of our educational technology faculty members, I have learned that the ISTE standards have been updated, although the association is no longer linked to CAEP. I have updated the standards chart on the website, and Computer/Technology programs should begin reviewing curriculum to ensure alignment to these standards: <https://www.iste.org/standards/for-educators>. No program review is required until the time your individual program is up for it's 7 year review.
