

There is continued debate about the “school takeover” legislation (SB70). There are several proposals, including HB 154, SB 110, and HB 166 provisions. A group has convened to somehow synthesize these and other ideas. A Senate Education Committee meeting is scheduled for tomorrow that will focus on a proposal (see below). Discussion about high school graduation and testing (as a whole) continues to heat up. There are some higher education issues (mostly aimed at public institutions, as of now) including performance audits, college graduation requirements and general core, and freedom of expression. Day on the Square was small but made an impact with many of the legislators. There is still the problem of omitting “non-profit” from the rules related to teacher preparation that popped up in the budget bill.

See attached analysis/comparison of current bills.

HB 166 Representative Scott Oelslager Creates FY 2020-2021 operating budget
Informal Hearing, Proponent/Opponent/ Interested Party (“Testimony will be limited to an Academic Distress proposal provided by the Chair’s office”).

Re: School Takeover Issue

More hearings on state “takeover” of struggling schools won’t come until next week, State Sen. Peggy Lehner said, when the language of her full proposal to change them will be available.

The “Academic Distress Commissions” that Ohio creates to run districts with poor state report card grades have come under fire this year for taking away too much control from locally-elected school boards, in the eyes of critics. The Ohio House already voted this year to end them.

Lehner, a Kettering Republican who chairs the Senate Education Committee, is working on a plan to instead have a single, statewide panel oversee all struggling schools, instead of a separate commission for each failing district. About 60 people bombarded the committee with testimony last Wednesday for nearly eight hours, from 3:30 to 11:30 p.m., with both complaints and support of takeover efforts. Lehner had said more hearings would come this week. But she said there are delays in drafting the full language of her proposal, which would be added as an amendment to House Bill 166, the state budget bill. Since a
